IRG Physical & Hand Therapy Donates Over $600 for Local Children's Programs While Encouraging Community Acts of Kindness

IRG Physical & Hand Therapy Organizes 'Good Neighbor' Campaign in Benefit of Providence General Foundation's Camp Prov

EVERETT, WASH., October 11, 2021: Over the summer of 2021, IRG Physical & Hand Therapy raised $660 in benefit of the Providence General Foundation by encouraging members of the public to share community acts of kindness. The physical therapy organization donated $10 for each social media comment received by community members that nominated others for being good neighbors or providing community support.

Funds raised through IRG Physical & Hand Therapy's Good Neighbor campaign were donated to the Providence General Foundation to support their Camp Prov program, an integrated summer camp for children with special needs and their family members.

Of the Good Neighbor campaign, IRG Physical & Hand Therapy President & CEO Shannon O'Kelley said, "IRG is extremely proud to be donating $660 to Camp Prov through our community Good Neighbor initiative. Here at IRG, we have always emphasized community connection and support. We believe that our success is strongly tied to our communities' successes. Being able to raise money for a great cause while promoting neighborly activities is a definite winning situation for all involved. We are thankful for all of those who supported this fundraiser and encourage everyone to continue to be good neighbors."

IRG Physical & Hand Therapy looks forward to providing continued support of their local communities through future fundraising efforts. The company is currently raising funds to support breast cancer research in benefit of the American Cancer Society. Those interested in donating can visit IRGPT.COM/events for more information.
